February 2022

Motorcycle futures market overview

As the latest version of COVID-19, Omicron, hits the world with its continuation of interruptions that are close to two years, if there is a positive, there are less restrictions in place in the UK seen in previous peaks, but that said, we also are reliant on a world supply chain for most of the products sold in our industry. Things change in a small-time frame, which over time get diluted from being a short-term crisis, to a long-term minor inconvenience. As far as long-term supply and prices which we are concerned about in this product, in the short term our industry has fared well compared to some. As the full year registration figures for 2021 are concerned, despite the challenges they are strong. If compared to car numbers which were only up 1% in 2021 from the previous year, which went from the 2019 figure of 2,311,140 down to 1,631,064. But in the PTW world the latest figures available from the MCIA reported 114,371 total registrations which are 9.3% up on the 2020 104,612 finish. But a better comparison would be to compare against 2019, where there is still a positive to be seen as the last pre-pandemic 107,408 in that year shows a 2021 increase of 6.48%. After the rush onto lightweight machines primarily used for commuting and delivery the reduced market share of larger capacity bikes where a PCP agreement is more likely to be applied, leads to the possibility that for several years there will still be supply issues of used machines if demand remains similar to now. With the economy still in the mixer as inflation is on the up, the general economy still carrying uncertainty, long term, by the time a current PCP deal is written and comes back into the used market, either return to some normality or people getting used to the new way of things it is currently expected to be a strong used motorcycle market. This month's figures are a reflection of that.
